Three local towns hit the jobpot

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Town officials in Bethel, Woodstock and Andover learned last week their towns are among 151 Maine communities that will split the proceeds of the $28 million jobs bond approved by voters last month.

Newry, Gilead, Greenwood and West Paris will not be sharing in the bounty. Newry's single grant proposal, for $70,800 to renovate the municipal building and grange hall, was rejected, as was Gilead's proposal for $53,576 to add a sidewalk to the Androscoggin River. Greenwood and West Paris did not submit proposals.

But Bethel was successful on three out of the four proposals it submitted, Woodstock on two out of three, and Andover on both of the two it submitted.

Bethel was awarded $355,500 to complete phases four and five of its Downtown Revitalization Project; $17,000 to develop a recreation and picnic area (on the Androscoggin shorefront parcel recently donated to the town by Danny Davis) and $7,000 to establish a transfer station at the Bethel landfill.

But the town's $75,000 proposal to construct a salt/sand shed was turned down.

In Woodstock, however, a $50,000 salt/sand shed proposal was approved, as was an application for $7,500 to replace the grandstand at the town ballfield.

Andover was awarded $25,000 for town office improvements and $33,000 for road reconstruction.

Bethel's $355,500 grant was one of the larger job bond grants—which ranged in size from $750,000 down to $800 (for the installation of a road

Phosphorous pollution worsening in local lakes

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The annual water quality report of the Community Lakes Association of Woodstock and Greenwood appears to indicate that the problem of phosphorous pollution in local lakes and great ponds is becoming more serious.

Results of tests commissioned by the group and conducted on a number of area great ponds at the end of the 1991 summer season indicate, in every case, a depression or depletion of oxygen near the bottoms of the ponds.

The problem seems especially severe in North Pond and Concord Pond, both in Woodstock, where results show massive quantities of dead algae have decomposed and are depleting oxygen levels in the bottom waters.

"These are definitely areas of concern," said Jim Chandler, of the Oxford County Soil and Water Conservation District. "We need to find out what's going on and see if we can discover the sources of the phosphorous."

Chandler, who is a member of the local lakes association, and Scott Williams, of the Turner-based Lake and Watershed Resource Management Associates, conducted the tests in late August of last year.

Their report will be formally issued Saturday at the association's annual meeting at the Maine Conservation school on Lake Christopher. The report details for a fifth consecutive year the declining health of the local lakes due to phosphorous pollution.

Phosphorous, a natural element found in rocks, soils and other organic material, feeds microscopic plants called algae. When the level of phosphorous present in the water increases, the amount of algae likewise multiplies. As the algae falls to the bottom of the lake, oxygen is depleted, making possible the release of more phosphorous from sediments there.

If the levels of phosphorous intro-

Bethel board puts off action on airport appeal

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Meeting Monday, the Bethel Board of Selectmen (acting as an ad hoc board of appeals) voted to delay until July 23 a final ruling on an aviation easement over the George and Elizabeth Gilbert property on the Northwest Bethel Road.

The easement is one of six the town has been required by the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) to secure before restrictions on the use of the Col. Dyke Airfield can be lifted.

The restrictions apply primarily to the legal usable length of the runway. Until the airspace easements

Student's family asks for policy review

By WENDY HANSCOM

The SAD #44 policy committee members found themselves acting as a sounding board last Tuesday night for the frustrated family of Ryan Stowell.

Stowell was suspended from school in February after throwing an orange that hit a girl in a Telstar High School corridor. As a result of the blow, the girl was temporarily paralyzed and was transported to a hospital by ambulance for treatment.

Stowell's mother Aline Crockett and sister Jennifer Stowell went to Tuesday's policy committee with the family's attorney Thomas Carey of Rumford to protest the way Ryan's case was handled.

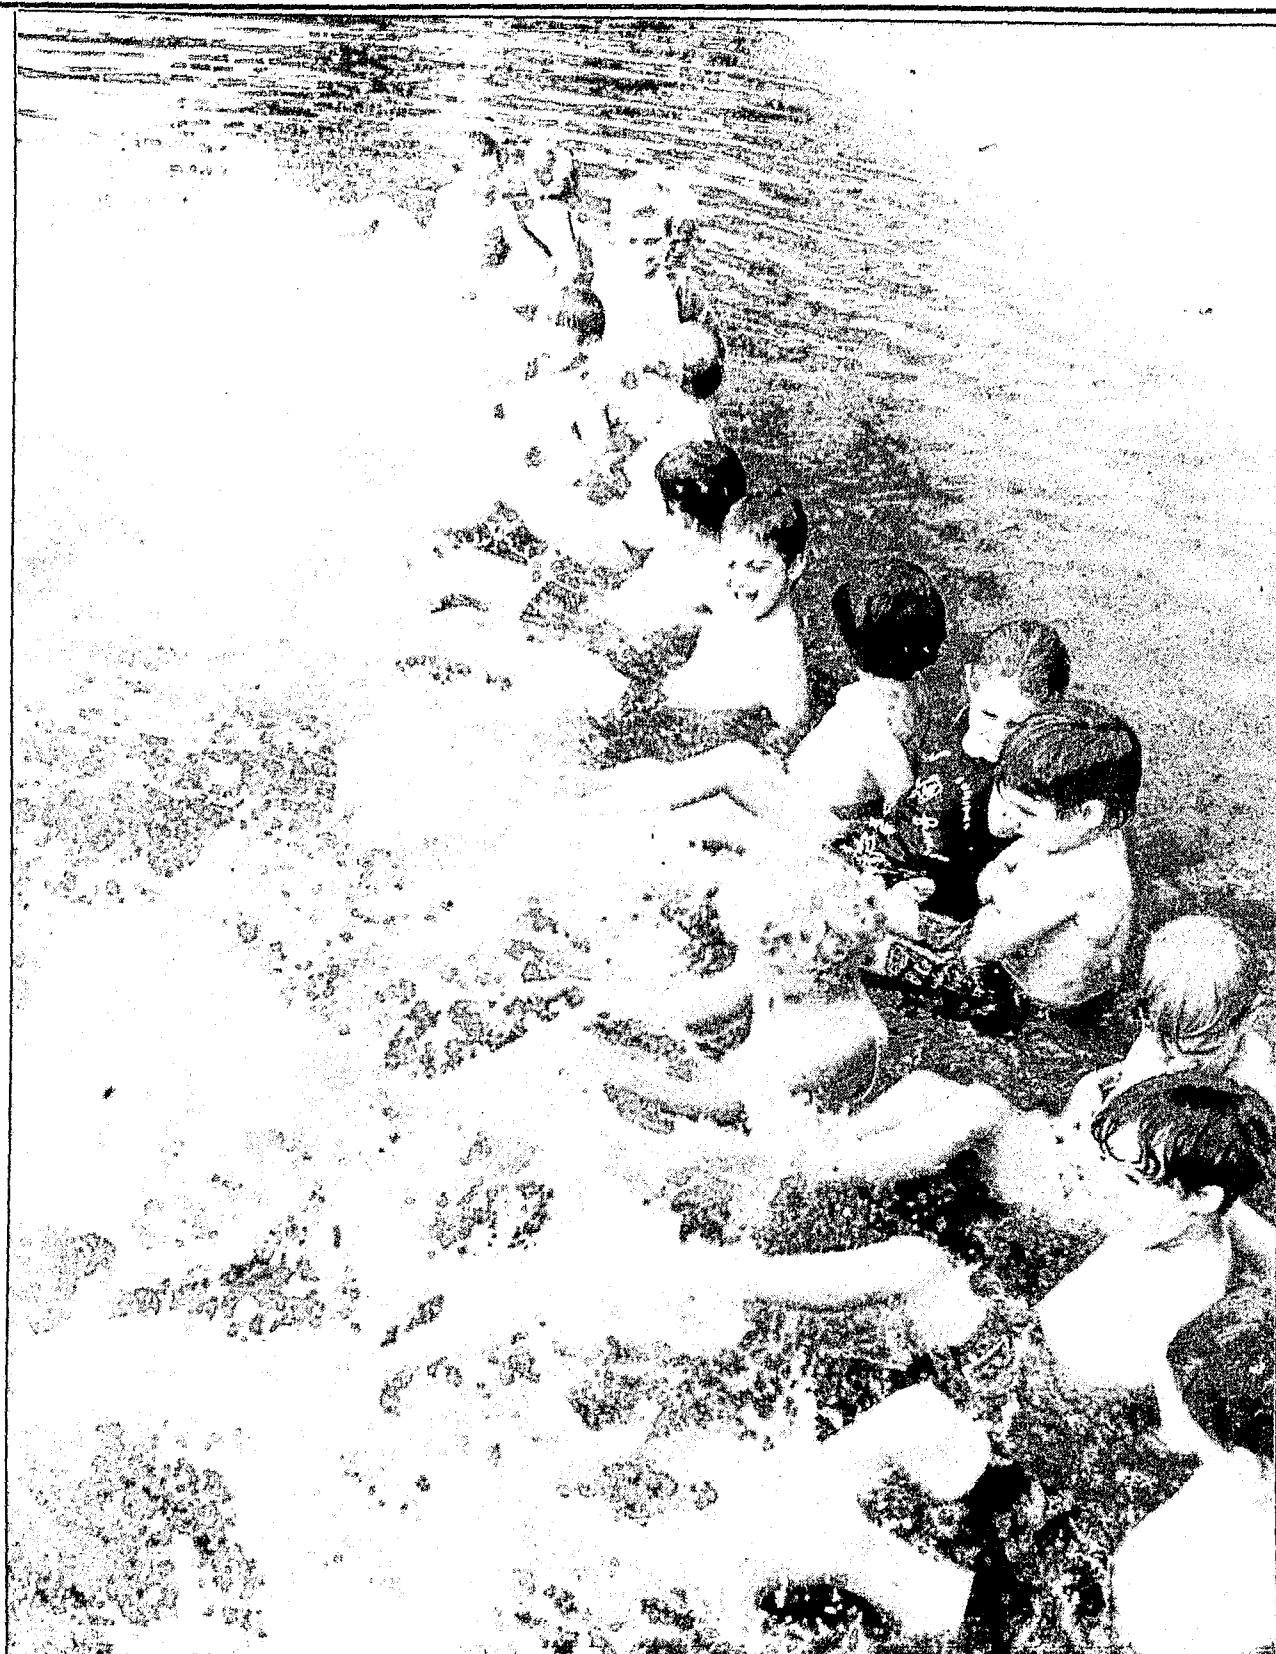

Specifically, they opposed a memo sent out to Telstar staff by Assistant Principal Carroll Higgins. The memo asked for only "negative attitude/behavior problems" of Ryan's. Carey asked the policy committee last Tuesday night to look into the policies regarding investigating student disciplinary matters.

He told the committee, "We are not here to challenge or chastise. We are here to help for the sake of other students."

Family angered

But Ryan's family could not hold back their frustration regarding the

G'wood ousts Dunham

By MICHAEL DANIELS

By a margin of nearly three to one, Greenwood voters opted last week to replace long-time tax assessor Herb Dunham.

The move came at the urging of the town's board of selectmen, who have been engaged with Dunham in a three-year stand-off over the location of Greenwood's tax assessment records.

Since 1989, when Dunham was reappointed to a three-year term as assessor, the selectmen have been demanding that the records be brought to the town office, where they would be available for public inspection. Dunham, who works from his home, had repeatedly agreed to bring them to the town office, but he never followed through on the commitment.

At one point Dunham even told the selectmen that written records for the town did not exist.

With the situation no closer to resolution than it was three years ago, and with Dunham due for re-appointment, the selectmen called a special town meeting last week to allow voters to decide the town's next move.

By a margin of 40 to 14, the voters present went along with the selectmen's proposal to eliminate the single appointed assessor arrangement (which had been adopted at Town Meeting in 1978) and to appoint the board of selectmen as assessors.

(For legal reasons, simply not reappointing Dunham was not a feasible option, according to selectman Marie Bartlett.)

The vote followed nearly an hour of debate. Bartlett, presenting the selectmen's case, reviewed the history of the stand-off between Dunham and the board, describing a series of explicit communications from the board demanding that the records be brought to the town office.

Dunham, in reply, didn't deny Bartlett's contentions, but he countered that he had been "har-

Letters to the Editor:

WELL DONE ON GRANTS

To the Editor:

Our local town managers, Madeleine Henley and Vern Maxfield, and their staffs deserve a tremendous "thank you" for their efforts in securing Jobs Bond grants for Bethel and Woodstock.

The short turn-around time for the applications put a lot of pressure on the grant writers and undoubtedly a lot of extra hours were required to meet the deadline.

As we watch the various projects take shape over the next few months, let's keep in mind the initiative and hard work that made them possible.

SHADE OR SAFETY?

To the Editor:

The discussions to date on the sewer work and widening on the lower Main Street have been focused on the loss of some trees and the providing of parking on both sides of the road. Since the public meeting on the subject I have had the opportunity to consider the matter further and believe that safety is as or even more important.

No one has to date discussed in any detail the problem of safety. It is a fact that parking is now occurring on both sides of lower Main Street. I know because on Tuesday, June 30, at about noon in front of my house there were three vehicles parked on each side of the road. With two way traffic travelling in a restricted space this created a hazard.

I was also reminded that there were cars parked on both sides of the street near the Sudbury Inn this last winter. This is a matter of record since they were ticketed and towed.

Regardless of how many signs are put up and regardless of any other action that might be taken, people will park where it is convenient, especially if it is supposedly only for one or two minutes just to do an errand. On a street where there is not sufficient width this is dangerous for the vehicles, the occupants, and even anyone in the immediate area. The town would be remiss in not taking corrective action when it has the opportunity to do the work.

Lastly, school buses and/or trucks travel on lower Main Street in the winter. With cars parked on one side and snowbanks on the other driving on the road at the same time is a cause for concern. With sidewalks and curbs on both sides of the street the snow will be removed in the same manner as upper Main Street. This will make travelling the road much safer for all including pedestrians and particularly school children using the buses.

Regarding the trees which will probably have to come down. The project manager for the town has checked the location of the sidewalk. If the center on the road is shifted as far as possible to the east, it appears that only four trees will be affected. On close examination it is evident that two of these trees will be gone in two or three years regardless of what happens to the road. I do not believe that two trees should be the deciding factor in what happens to lower Main Street.

LEARNING THAT ACTIONS HAVE CONSEQUENCES

To the Editor:

In the fall of 1960 I was the returning starting fullback for the Somerville High School Football Team.

Nothing was more important to me than playing football.

In the spring of the same year I was told by my accounting teacher that I was in jeopardy of flunking his course and he reminded me very sternly that if I was to fail his course I would not be allowed to play football the following fall.

I knew the rules, flunked the course and was not allowed to play ball for the following season. It was made worse by the fact that I did not have time to make up these grades because the season would be over before the next marking period.

It still bothers me to this day, but it has never occurred to me that anybody else was responsible for my loss of playing time. It was clearly my fault.

It is against school policy to assault another person and it is clear that the punishment for assault is expulsion. If there was an assault there was an expulsion and that should be the end of it.

As for the young man who threw the orange and was not allowed to graduate with his class or have his picture in the year book.

What would we do for the Elliot child to see that she graduated with her class if she were laying in Stephens Memorial Hospital still suffering from the damages of a hurled missile thrown by another classmate.

We have taught them contempt for police, teachers, our country and worst of all we have allowed them to hold us, their parents, in complete contempt.

It is all right to teach our children to question authority but unfortunately we have taught them to defy authority and we have further taught them that there is no penalty for their actions.

I am a very outspoken critic of the SAD #44 administration at times and I make no apology for it. My criticism is aimed at making the system a better one as I see it.

It is also with no apology that I firmly stand shoulder to shoulder with the administration and the Bethel Police Department with regard to the handling of these two problems and beg them all not to roll over on this matter of discipline.

I have nothing but respect for the school board, school administration and the Bethel Police Department in the manner in which this situation was handled.

RESERVE OFFICER SAYS FAREWELL

To the Editor:

It saddens me to write this letter to inform the people of Bethel that I can no longer serve you as a reserve officer on the Bethel Police Department.

I was given a one day notification, by mail, that my dedicated services were to be terminated. This termination was to take effect as of July 1, 1992 because of reductions in the reserve officers budget account.

I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank each and every one of the people who over the course of the last eight years has shown me respect and given much support.

I would like to make special mention of the late chief, Robert Stearns and offer my respect for his family.

I would further like to thank the former town manager, Rodney Lynch and the town government of Bethel as well.

It was a pleasure to work for the above mentioned people and my fellow officers all of which gave me the opportunity to perform my duties and to uphold the laws of the town, State of Maine and the Constitution of the United States. A fellow officer told me at the time I came on board that our duty was to help our citizens and not to hurt them. It was always my honor and pleasure to come to the assistance of any one who needed my help.

I will always be reminded of the job with pleasure when I look at the commendations given to me by the town of Bethel for a job well done.

The phone calls and letters from the public, especially one from a Canadian couple who felt that I had saved their vacation by just offering them a helping hand when they were stranded on the highway.

CLEANING THE CLOSET—Sue Lincoln of Bethel delivers a load of used clothing to the District Exchange in the basement of the Ethel Bisbee school. Lincoln said it was difficult to go through her closet and part with past treasures, but that she wanted to donate the items in support of the exchange. The exchange opened last week in the basement of the Ethel Bisbee School. Volunteers are staffing the facility on Tuesdays from 4 to 7 p.m. and Thursdays from 12 to 3 p.m. Volunteer Maryvonne Wheeler said everyone is welcome to come in and browse through the used clothing. Everything is on sale to the public for less than $1, she said. All money raised from the clothing sale will go to support the exchange's food bank. Those who may need free clothing can contact an exchange volunteer. Donations to the exchange are welcome during its operating hours, Wheeler said.

helped them get their car started and on their way through the rest of their vacation.

If it was the middle of the day or the middle of the night, it was a job I loved and an education and an experience I loved.

I was then and would again be proud to wear the badge of the Bethel Police Department.

To all of you, Thank you very much.

FROM THE Bethel Town Office

I would like to take this opportunity to call attention to some very busy firefighters, especially Mike Jodrey and Scott Brown that took time out of their schedules to paint the office, meeting room, kitchen and bathrooms in the fire station. It has brightened and lightened the atmosphere and I also understand the floors are going to be receiving some extra attention as well. I know the townspeople will join me in applauding your dedication to the fire department and the town. Thank you, very much.

I want also to put people on the alert to look for some quick action on the awards we won through the Jobs Bond Program. Having picked up three of the four grants requested is a two-edged sword; its wonderful to have the money, but we will really need to be juggling to get everything done in a timely manner. Your help and patience will be very much appreciated at this time.

Memory's Corner

"God hates a quitter."

Forty-five years, on a Saturday in May, 1947, the Joe Roderick-coached Gould Academy track team was crowned Oxford County champions on the victor's Alumni Field. The following Saturday on the old Colby College campus in Waterville, sandwiched between the railroad tracks and the Kennebec River, the Husky tracksters won their second successive State Class "B" Championship.

On that last day of May in 1947 Gould picked up 66 points to win the county crown followed by Fryeburg with 46 1/2; Rumford, 27 1/2; South Paris, 2; and Mexico, 1.

Jerry Davis paced the Husky squad that day with firsts in the high jump, shot put and broad jump, and a second in the discus. Dick Ireland was the winner in the two hurdle contests, a second place in the broad jump and a second-place tie in the high jump. Rocky Giles won the 440 and 880, garnered a second in the shot and a tie for second in the high jump.

Other point-getters for Gould that day were: John Brown with second place finishes in the 100 and 220; Dave Farrington, third in both high and low hurdles; Dick Melville, third in the mile and a tie for third in the pole vault; Bob Adams, second in the javelin; Harlan Blake, tie for third in the pole vault; Harry Swan, fourth in the 880, and Randy Foster, fourth in the mile.

The following week at Waterville provided a climactic conclusion to a successful season. Going into the final event Gould led Traip Academy of Kittery by one-third of a point and Farmington High School by one. Jerry Davis had taken first places in the broad and high jump events and set a new class "B" record while winning the discus. Dick Ireland added three points from the hurdle events, and Rocky Giles had chipped in with one-third of a point with a share of third place in the high jump.

Neither Traip or Farmington had any contestants in the javelin so when Bob Adams picked up a fourth it increased Gould's final total to 191 1/3 points. As an interesting sidelight, it might be noted that second place Traip Academy's 18 points were scored by two competitors, the entire squad that the coastal school had sent to the meet.

The victory at Waterville was the second of ten state crowns brought back to Gould by Roderick-coached squads during his tenure at the local school. The previous year's victory was garnered on a rain-soaked Portland Stadium field.

In addition to 1946 and 1947, Gould tracksters also won state class "B" championships, or its successor "M" classification, in 1949, 1951, 1953-54-55-56, 1958 and 1961.

The quarter-mile cinder oval where Joe's track squads practiced and home meets were held for a quarter century was removed a year ago and consigned to the mists of history. Its foundation is now covered with newly-seeded sod.

The outline of the old track could still be seen earlier this month as the grass sown last summer was unable to immediately heed the claxon call of spring possibly because of the lack of protection from deep snow in the season just past.

But perhaps it was to serve as a ghostly reminder of past glories, a sort of spontaneous Valhalla where once again may be seen, if only in the mind's eye, those who ran and jumped, put the shot, threw the discus and the javelin. The mental highs and lows of athletic competition are recalled after many years—the victories and the defeats all but forgotten in the shadowy attic of the individual memory.

Once again those affected can savor the words of Lord Byron, "The days of our youth are the days of our glory..."

However transient those youthful glories were, the lessons taught, and learned, have served the participants well. Anyone who never ran track for Joe Roderick can still hear his admonition ringing in their ears, "Get out there and work hard, do your best. God hates a quitter."

Sunny skies and a cool breeze were the order of things during the Bethel Historical Society's annual picnic held this year at South Bridgton on Thursday evening. The picnic was held in the field overlooking the mountains below the historic Peabody-Fitch farm, dating from 1797.

Following the picnic a short business meeting was held with president Jane Hosterman presiding. Mrs. Hosterman announced that the next monthly meeting will be held on Aug. 6 and will feature Richard Fraser, discussing Maine-made automobiles. The following night as part of Sudbury Canada Days the Society will present the first Hall lecture made possible through interest income from the bequest received in 1991 from the estate of Ralph and Marian Hall.

Professor Sarah McMahon of Bowdoin College will present a lecture, "Text and Context: History, Genealogy, and the 1803-1856 Daybook of Joseph Wear, Jr. of York, Maine." Mrs. Hosterman announced that the other two days of Sudbury Canada Days would be Aug. 8 and 9 and as usual there is always a need for volunteers for a whole range of activities. Anyone interested in volunteering should call 824-2908.

Following the meeting, a tour of the Peabody-Fitch house and barn was conducted for those attending the picnic by Bridgton Historical Society Director Thomas Johnson. He outlined the history of the house and the ongoing restoration based on meticulous documentation and research. The property was left as a bequest to the Bridgton Historical Society in the 1980s and since that time the society has worked diligently to transform it to its original condition and setting. Mr. Johnson concluded his tour by describing the future plans of the Bridgton Historical Society for the property.

Canoeing Tips

ALWAYS wear a life vest.
If the wind is too strong, consider postponing the trip.
Things you should consider carrying include: spare clothes for each member of party (in waterproof container), spare paddle, bug dope, drinking water, food, rain gear, sun screen, sun hat.
Know the location of the closest telephone.
In case of capsizing, stay with canoe, keep feet up, stay on upstream side of boat, slowly swim canoe to shallow water to empty out.
ALWAYS wear a life vest.

The Androscoggin River rises in Lake Umbagog, New Hampshire (one of the Rangeley Lakes chain) and flows for approximately 200 miles to the Gulf of Maine. Its general direction is east. The 42 miles included in this map start at the dam below Reflection Pond in New Hampshire and end at Rumbold. In this section the river flows through the Mahoosuc Mountains, just north of the White Mountains. The scenery is pastoral, with farming activities predominating along the banks.

The Friends of The Androscoggin is a grass roots organization comprising local people dedicated to the wise, sound, and varied use of the river. Through their efforts, and with the active support and participation of residential and corporate abutters, much has been done to improve water quality, access, and recreational possibilities. This map is dedicated to those Friends.

Access Points

Put in and take out places along the Androscoggin are made available by the generosity and goodwill of private and corporate benefactors. Please treat them with respect.

- A. The Shelburne Dam. From Route 2 a road leads north one half mile to the dam that holds back Reflection Pond. Access is across the river. Caution: The river is moving quite fast at this put in.
- B. Shelburne Bridge. Follow the signs from Route 2 to Shelburne. A new bridge crosses the river, and on the north side under the old bridge is a put in over boulders and rocks.
- C. Gilead. (Courtesy of Boise Cascade Corp.) The blue sign in Gilead opposite the picnic area on Route 2 leads to a bridge over the river. Just before the bridge is a dirt road leading about two hundred yards to a woody put in.
- D. Newt's Landing. (Courtesy of Roy Newton and Newton & Tebbetts Inc.) Behind the Newton and Tebbetts mill in West Bethel is a concrete and wood set of steps providing good access. A blue sign on Route 2 points the way.
- E. Rt. 2 Bridge, Bethel. One hundred yards north of the major bridge crossing the river is an old road leading right (east) down to an old camping area. Access is close under the bridge abutment.
- F. Davis Mill. On the north side of Rt 26 east of Bethel. A field provides parking. (NB this is a particularly good access point for a leisurely evening paddle, as the current here is not at all strong, and allows the chance to get back to the launch site easily.)
- G. Picnic Area, Rt. 2. The DOT picnic area on Rt 2 offers steep access down a ten foot slope. There are toilets and picnic tables.
- H. Bear River Rips. This is just below the rips on the left bank. From Rt 2 a dirt road behind a mail box just west of the junction of 2 and 26 leads down to a small beach area.
- I. Madison Motor Inn. On the left bank of the river behind the Inn is a good launch point. Parking is in the parking area. Please do NOT drive over grass. (NB This part of river is also designated a Seaplane Landing Area!)
- J. Rumbold Boat Launch. This is the only place on the river for motorized boat access. A blue sign on Rt 2 marks the site. There is space for parking.

Lakes

duced into the water, by way of normal watershed drainage or unwise shoreline development, continue to increase, area ponds may be rendered "dead" or uninhabitable to fish and other aquatic life due to a lack of oxygen.

While there is still time to save the lakes, and maintain the relatively good water quality, Chandler said, citizens should be aware that the effects of continued phosphorous pollution are very difficult and exceedingly expensive to reverse.

"Lakes are a major resource to the towns around here," said Chandler. "We need to continue to measure their water quality to make sure we don't push the phosphorous levels over the edge."

The association's 1991 water quality tests, summarized in the group's June newsletter, indicate that while all area ponds continue to show signs of oxygen depletion, some ponds are better off than others.

For instance, despite slight decreases in their water quality in the past year, Lake Christopher, South Pond, Shagg Pond, and Twitchell Pond all rate relatively good. Round Pond rates moderately good.

Slowing the rate of phosphorous pollution, Scott Williams said, would require that "efforts be made to control the effects of phosphorous export from the watershed to the lake, local phosphorous-control ordinances be enacted, watershed surveys be conducted to locate and eliminate existing sources of phosphorous sediment, and public education programs be instituted."

The featured speaker at the association's annual meeting Saturday will be Jeff Dennis, of the Maine Department of Environmental Protection's Lakes Division, who is expected to further outline ways in which phosphorous pollution may be contained.

The local lakes association is an organization dedicated to promoting and enhancing the general well-being of area lakes and great ponds. The group's annual meeting is scheduled for Saturday at 9 a.m.

Airport appeal

over adjacent properties are obtained, pilots are limited as to where they may fly when approaching or leaving the airport—hence, the usable amount of runway is also limited.

The town has been attempting for more than three years to secure the various easements, with much of that time taken up with negotiation with the FAA over assessments and funding.

To date only one easement, that over the Norseman Inn, has been completed.

At Monday's meeting, the Gilberts appealed the town's offer to pay $3,500 for their easement, which would allow aircraft to fly as low as 29 feet over the couple's property.

Specifically, the Gilberts objection to the town's proposed compensation package stems from a belief that $3,500 does not accurately reflect the potential devaluation of their property.

Once secured, the easement would allow the town to clear any growth, including trees, which might otherwise present an obstacle to planes taking off or landing at the airstrip.

"I might put my house on the market. Who's going to want to buy it with the easement," said Kathleen Gilbert. "Once it's there, it's there forever."

Lakes group hopes G'wood will seek septic grants

Buoyed by the news that the Town of Woodstock has already begun to identify and repair faulty septic systems with grant money received recently from the Maine Department of Environmental Protection, the community Lakes Association of Greenwood and Woodstock would like to see the Town of Greenwood seek similar funds to repair its faulty systems.

"We'd like residents of the town to express an interest in getting some money to fix the faulty systems there, too," said association President Jon DeNormandie.

In Woodstock's case, the town received $20,000 from the DEP-administered Small Communities Grant Program for the purpose of cleaning up inadequate septic systems in town. Woodstock Town Manager Vern Maxfield has said the money will enable the town to improve four or five faulty systems.

Under the terms of the town's agreement with the DEP, the state money will pay for 90 percent of the cost to replace an inadequate system, so long as the homeowner does not make more than $30,000 annually.

DeNormandie, whose group provides dye tablets free to residents interested in testing their existing septic systems, said towns should take advantage of the DEP money in an effort to preserve Maine's many lakes and great ponds.

"People with faulty systems need to do something about them, because they're affecting the water. That's the bottom line. And this money from the DEP makes that a lot easier," said DeNormandie.

According to Maxfield, since DEP officials have so far approved only one septic system for replacement, there is money remaining in the account for clean up. Anyone interested in learning more about the funds should contact the Woodstock town office at 665-2669.

Jobs Bond

sign in Vienna).

State economist estimate that the two job bonds (another $48 million was designated for transportation projects) will create 4,000 construction jobs this summer, plus another 6,000 spin-off jobs.

Two hundred and thirty-five Maine communities submitted a total of 539 job bond applications. The total amount of requests was roughly three times the amount of available money.

To be considered for funding, a project had to be far enough along in its planning that it could be completed during the current construction season.

Once that criterion had been met, applications were evaluated primarily according to how many jobs they would create, but also on how many jobs had been lost in a community in recent years, and on how much matching money the community could generate.

Match required

The job-bond grants are matching grants, which means that the communities must contribute an equal amount to each project.

In many cases, however, local communities have either money available in surplus, or funds voters have already designated for the projects.

Andover expects to call a special Town Meeting on the town office project, according to treasurer Al Legault, but it already has money set aside for the road work.

In Woodstock, voters had already raised $7,500 to repair the grandstand, and set aside $15,000 toward the salt/sand shed. Town Manager Vern Maxfield said selectmen will call a special Town Meeting to ask voters to take the $35,000 balance for the salt/sand from the tree-growth penalty fund. (The selectmen will also be seeking permission to replace, rather than repair, the old grandstand.)

In Bethel, Town Manager Madeleine Henley said the transfer station funds have already been designated, and roughly half of the $17,000 match for the recreation area will be covered by the value of the land (which is counted toward the town's contribution).

If the town is to take full advantage of the recreation-area grant, she said, the balance of the matching money will have to be voted by the town or come from private contributions.

But Bethel voters will need to approve more money for the town's big ticket item, the $355,000 revitalization grant. Henley estimated that as much as $150,000 could be available from the Maine Department of Transportation (for the restructuring of Mill Hill Road) and some of the engineering work on those phases of the project has already been completed.

She said she expected the selectmen to ask voters to allow the town to apply for a Farmers' Home Administration loan-grant for the balance needed for the project—approximately $110,000 (all figures are tentative at this time).

"I know no one wants to add to debt service," she said, "but we're never going to see a deal like this again."

If voters approve the project, and the construction work can be successfully scheduled, Bethel's Downtown Revitalization Project could be largely finished this year.

If this is accomplished, the multi-stage project will have taken two years to complete, rather than the five originally planned.

Newry planners want Alpenhaus with trees

By WENDY HANSCOM

The Newry planning board has directed the designers of the proposed "Alpenhaus" restaurant on the Skiway Road to leave a vegetation buffer around the project's borders and to build a deceleration lane.

At last week's meeting, planning board vice-chairman Don Sandstrom said that the town's ordinances allow for the planning board to determine what is adequate screening for a commercial project.

Sandstrom said the ordinance was intended to protect the abutters view and provide a noise barrier.

The board initially proposed a 25-foot barrier, but project engineer Billy Stowell argued that 25 feet around the total project was excessive. He said if he was forced to create a 25 foot buffer on the east side of the project, along the Donald Bennett property line, he would have to set the restaurant more than 15 feet back from the line originally planned.

The move would upset the building's view of the White Heat trail at Sunday River Ski Resort, he said.

Stowell proposed a compromise. He asked the planning board to allow him to plant two rows of trees in a 20 foot wide strip, for 320 feet along the Bennett/Alpenhaus line. He said that way the restaurant would only have to be moved 10 feet further from Bennett's line.

The planning board approved Stowell's plan. The board also voted to require a 25 foot vegetation border around the rest of the project.

Deceleration lane

The board also asked that the developers include a deceleration lane in their plans.

Board member Mike Lynch said the lane would allow vehicles safer access to the restaurant. Especially during peak hours of traffic generated by the ski resort, he said.

Stowell said he didn't think the lane was necessary, but added he would reluctantly agree to build it.

"I don't agree with it, but I don't think it's worth arguing about," Stowell said. "I would request that we be allowed to leave it gravel the first year and pave it the second."

The board voted to require the lane, and allowed the one-year delay in paving. The lane will be built in the town's right-of-way, but restaurant developers must pay for its construction, according to the town's ordinances.

The board asked Stowell to add the required changes to the restaurant's site plan and return to another meeting to further review the project's application.

Threat, theft, firecrackers --and who left the dog food?

At 2:26 a.m. on Monday June 29, Bethel Police Officer Darrin Tripp was requested by the Oxford County Sheriff's Department to back up Deputy Christopher Wainwright and State Trooper Tim Holland at the Fred Meader residence on the Old Songo Pond Road in Albany.

The Sheriff's Department had received a call from Meader complaining that another Albany man, and several other subjects, had threatened him at his residence. Officer Tripp was advised that the man and the other subjects were intoxicated.

At 3:00 a.m. Officer Tripp conducted a search of the area which disclosed no sign of the subjects. Officer Tripp returned to Bethel shortly after 3:20 a.m.

At 7:45 a.m. on Monday, June 29, Robert Pilgrim, foreman of the Bethel highway department, reported that a 24'-by-24' culvert, valued at $240, had been stolen from the rear lot at the town garage on Cross Street. The culvert had been delivered to the town garage three days before on June 26.

At 5:40 p.m. on Monday, June 29, Bethel Officer Darrin Tripp received a complaint that a Paradise Road juvenile had pointed a BB gun at another child. The juvenile's parents were advised.

At 11:03 p.m. on Monday, June 29, Valerie Saeberg of Vernon Street reported that the occupants of a large gray vehicle were tossing firecrackers out an open window as the vehicle headed south on Route 5 towards Albany. Officer Tripp checked the area, but found no vehicle.

At 3:15 p.m. on Thursday, July 2, Bean's Corner resident Joan Ward reported that someone had entered her home and placed a one-pound bag of dog food in her oven while she was out of town. Ward requested Bethel Police Chief Dale Bellman to provide extra patrol in the area.

At 10:25 p.m. on Thursday, July 2, Bethel Officer James Merrill was advised by the Oxford County Sheriff's Department that a deer had been struck by a car on the Northwest Bethel Road near the Ernest Angevine residence. After patrolling to the Gilead town line and finding no deer, Merrill turned around. On the way back, just before the Angevine residence, Merrill discovered a small fawn dead in the bushes. No vehicle was located. A game warden was advised of the deer's location.

rased" by the board and never given a written job description for the position.

He also pointed out that he had been commended by the state for keeping the town assessment at 90 percent of the state's valuation.

As for the records, he said: "I don't know exactly what they're talking about. They keep saying 'records, records, records.' I'll bring in whatever I have for deeds and so forth."

Dunham also said he had been abused by newspaper accounts of the situation. "I don't think anybody who has been in office as long as I have needs to be abused in the paper," he said. "I don't like being hammered and hammered and hammered."

He said that given the way he had been ill-treated, he doubted anyone else would ever run for town office in Greenwood again.

But Bartlett responded sharply that Dunham had brought the whole situation upon himself. "I think three years is ample time for you to bring in what the selectmen requested," she said—"shame on you for allowing this to go on this far."

Bartlett said that the selectmen would hire a professional assessment agent, O'Donnell Associates of Auburn, to assist them with the assessing.

The firm has prepared the town's tax maps for several years, Bartlett said.

The firm has agreed to assist the selectmen for an annual fee of $3,000.

Dunham earned $7 an hour as assessor and last year was paid $1,799.

Following the meeting, some residents expressed concern over the increase in assessing costs. "You just watch," said one life-long resident, "in four years we'll be paying $35,000."

As for the location of the Dunham's assessment records, which Dunham promised at the Town Meeting to bring in, Bartlett said Monday that "The town is still wait-

Tree petition circulating

A petition opposing the Bethel selectmen's plan to remove a number of old trees from lower Main Street will be presented to the board at its next meeting, July 20, according to Lynn Mason, who drafted the document.

"We're seeking a compromise, that's all," said Mason, a resident of lower Main Street. "We don't think lower Main Street needs to look like upper Main Street and we wanted to tell the selectmen."

The petition, which has already been signed by more than 140 Bethel residents, is the result of the selectmen's plan, revealed at an informational meeting two weeks ago, to remove some of the tall shade trees which canopy lower Main Street in order to widen the road and construct five-foot sidewalks on both sides.

The trees, which the board has pledged to replace one-for-one, are due to be cut down in early August when Couture Construction, of Berlin, N.H., commences with the lower Main Street portion of this summer's second phase of the Downtown Revitalization Project.

The project, expected to cost $485,000 to complete, consists of replacing sewer and septic lines along lower Main Street and sections of Railroad, Cross, and Vernon streets.

ing for him to bring them in."

If the records have to be entirely reconstructed, Bartlett said, it could prove a considerable expense to the town.

She said the three selectmen have all volunteered their own time to work with the assessing agent "and try to keep the cost down."

In other business at last week's meeting, voters agreed to allow Key Bank, owner of the former DJ Construction building, to use the town office's water supply for one year.

A prospective tenant for the building, Rick Savage, is planning to open a clothing store in the building and has pledged to drill a well of his own at the end of one year.

Voters also agreed to raise $1,655 to upgrade the computer and printer at the town office.

Voter agreed to spend $4,000 to immunize town employees—primarily its firefighters—against the Hepatitis B virus.

And they approved a number of state-mandated changes to the town's shoreland zoning ordinance. The changes are primarily in wording and do not affect provisions of the ordinance such as setbacks, according to planning board chairman Wayne Hakala.

Bethel Library notes

The Bethel Library's annual Summer Reading Program is underway. The program is open to preschoolers through next fall's fifth graders. Children are asked to keep track of library books they read over the summer. For each five books, the reader can come to the library to get a tree to add to the "Maine Scene" on the Bethel IGA window. Once 20 books are read, the reader has successfully completed the program. This year we will also have a group goal of 1,500 books. There will be a "thermometer" at the library, and we will all watch the red line rise as the summer progresses and more and more books are read.

Preschoolers and beginning readers may have help from adults; older children should read their books themselves. The goal is to keep kids reading and to encourage library use.

Preschoolers and fall kindergartners will have a party at the library in August to celebrate.

Fall first-graders through fifth-graders will have a surprise trip in late August.

Please call 824-2520 for more information. There will be extra forms at the library for preschoolers and anyone who needs them.

Other exciting events at the library this summer:

Art sessions with Sue Wight, July 20—"Leaf Prints" and Aug. 10—"Twig/Branch Weaving," both from 10 to 11 a.m., open to elementary school children.

Summer theater with Nancy Hansen, Monday, July 13, 10 a.m. to noon and Tuesday July 28, 2-4 p.m. Each session the group will work on the same play, so come the first day to get a good role. Open to elementary school children.

Teddy Bear Picnic for preschoolers, Aug. 17, 11 a.m. to noon, rain or shine. Bring your Teddy and your lunchbox. Cake and games will be provided.

"Olympics" party Monday, July 27, 10 a.m. to noon. Open to elementary school children. Races and fun outdoor activities will be the focus.

The library's quilt raffle will continue until Mollycodd Day, when the winner will be drawn and announced.

There also will be a book sale on the library lawn on Mollycodd Day (donations welcome but, please, no old textbooks). The plant sale in early June was a great success. Thanks to all the people who donated perennials.

UPTON JOINS OCSWC

Upton residents voted recently to join the Oxford County Regional Solid Waste Corp.

The 15 residents who turned out for a June 23 special town meeting unanimously voted to join OCSWC and authorized selectmen to spend $1,500 for recycling bins.

Selectmen will appoint a director to the corporation, which now has 14 member towns.

Voters approved the transfer of $190.50 from the landfill surplus account to pay the corporation's membership fee. The $1,500 for bins will be taken from surplus.

Newry solid waste committee chairman and OCSWC board member Sig Sysko explained OCSWC's procedures and answered questions.

Sysko cautioned residents that recycling bins containing too many non-recyclable items may be rejected. Whenever a recycling bin fills up, the corporation will haul it away, he said.

never ing for him to bring them in." If the records have to be entirely reconstructed, Bartlett said, it could prove a considerable expense to the town.

She said the three selectmen have all volunteered their own time to work with the assessing agent "and try to keep the cost down."

In other business at last week's meeting, voters agreed to allow Key Bank, owner of the former DJ Construction building, to use the town office's water supply for one year.

A prospective tenant for the building, Rick Savage, is planning to open a clothing store in the building and has pledged to drill a well of his own at the end of one year.

Voters also agreed to raise $1,655 to upgrade the computer and printer at the town office.

Voter agreed to spend $4,000 to immunize town employees—primarily its firefighters—against the Hepatitis B virus.

And they approved a number of state-mandated changes to the town's shoreland zoning ordinance. The changes are primarily in wording and do not affect provisions of the ordinance such as setbacks, according to planning board chairman Wayne Hakala.

Greenwood City

By COLISTA MORGAN

Leonas and Fay Holt were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 21 at their farm home in Greenwood City. All preparations were made by their children, Robert, Ann and David and their families.

A dark cloud came suddenly over all when on Friday evening, Leonas became ill and was taken to the hospital where he had emergency surgery on Saturday morning, so Fay had to "carry on" alone.

Neighbors and relatives assisted with preparations for the buffet lunch.

The cake was beautifully done by Sarah Craig and highlighted with real flowers between the two pillars.

About 100 guests attended, including nieces, nephews and grandchildren.

The one who came the greatest distance was from Pennsylvania. I can't name the oldest but the youngest was Lisa Piccirillo, age one.

Jennett Holt, a granddaughter, looked after the guest book.

The delicious punch was made by John and Dot Betts and served by Jeri Holt who also tended the buffet tables.

Ann and Sally Holt were busy everywhere.

Colista Morgan wrote a poem which covered their 50 years.

Leonas and Fay were married in West Paris by Rev. Eleanor Forbes and have lived at the farm all the years except in the 1940s when Leonas was in the army and stationed in Colorado. On his return he did woods work, carpenter work and finally farming.

Fay was an excellent mother and homemaker for her children, her father and her brother.

They received many lovely gifts and they thank everyone who came and all who made the day a success.

Nestled in a forest valley/Greenwood City looks afar/How lovely against the sunsets/The mighty mountains are/An expanse of blue horizons/Winds that blow and cease/Skies with clouds or starlight/A valley of restful peace/Here within these valleys/Have sturdy souls been born/Our town's historic pages/Their names and deeds adorn/Their memories and achievements/Greenwood shall deep aglow/Through spring, summer, autumn/Or when winter whirls its snow.

How much the farm fields have changed since the last of May. The sun has warmed the soil enough so that it gives back radiation.

LEONAS AND FAY HOLT

The breeze is softer, the sun is really warm, the smell of pine comes on the breeze from every direction. Like plants that needed moisture and sun, the insect eggs laid last fall have hatched and emerged; it seems overnight.

A grasshopper appears at every step, always landing just where I plan to put my foot. I like the description I once wrote down, written by Jules Renard in his "Natural Histories". It fits a grasshopper better than any other I have read. "He is afraid of nothing because he has seven league boots, the neck of a bull, the brow of a genius, the belly of a ship, celluloid wings, devil's horns, and a big sword on its backside."

Beetles, tiny bugs of many colors and sizes put among the leaves and stems.

How many times have I climbed this hill! How many times have I sat and looked at the scenery!

Here, each season mingles with another. In winter, there is the promise of spring and in spring there is the forerun of summer. The white of summer clouds reminds me of the drifts of winter snow. The green of spruces brings thoughts of the first mallard. The gray rocks are reminders of gray winter skies.

Big fat bees were on clover blossoms, as they shimmered against the grasses.

The air was full of bird songs and I was happy to be out. I stood looking ing out at the mountains letting it all soak in and compared it to a puzzle of many pieces set out on a table. Occasionally a few pieces fitted together, but I knew the puzzle would never be complete. There would always be something to discover.

As I left to return home, I felt again the special pleasures of the many treasures of this valley-jewel-box. I heard the jingle of the Bob-o-link as I passed through the gate of the B-Road. It was here that I have learned much about the flowers, grasses, plants and mountains.

On Wednesday of this week, Dot Betts and I went with several other teachers for dinner then to Avis Stelhorn's for a social gathering.

Mr. and Mrs. John Betts were in Portsmouth on Wednesday evening for a banquet and returned home on Thursday.

Louise DiArenzo of Pennsylvania has been visiting her mother, Zilpha DiArenzo at her home this week.

Mary Holt spent an evening with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonas Holt this week.

Sally Holt came for a visit at Fay's on Friday morning.

There has been a lot of activity on the pond this week; many ducks and blue herons and on the back shore deer and moose.

There was a birthday party at the Tamminen residence on Sunday, June 21. Celebrating birthdays were Kara Andrews, Dell Hayes, Tricia Perham and Nestor Tamminen who was 89 years young on June 22. A beautiful cake, made by Rachel Kuvaja, was served to the guests of honor and Betty Hayes, Katie Tamminen, Deven, Judi and Ian Andrews, Aarne Jarvenpaa, Pat and Charlie Verrill, Delsey Andrews and Mathias, Tony Andrews and Errol.

Monday, June 29, I went to Dr. Matuska in Lewiston, had my hair cut at Friscillas, went to Dr. Wares and just got home and "that nice Charlotte Cole" brought me a box of strawberries. Joe Vatcher brought me two boxes, they were delicious.

Tuesday, June 30, I went and took an anniversary card and gift to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt, their 47th anniversary.

Wednesday, July 1, I took Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham to Northland to celebrate their 45th anniversary. Our anniversary was July 1 also. They Paula Perham and Mary Perham. Mr. and Mrs. John Betts left on Thursday for a vacation to New Orleans.

Lillian Strait and Colista Cogswell, Freeport recently visited their mother, Rena Curtis.

Robert Holt of Windsor drove here on Wednesday evening to see his father at Stephens Memorial Hospital, then called on his mother and me.

Each morning I see the bus go by carrying the children for swim lessons at Vernon Inman's beach.

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

The Newry Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary will meet Thursday, July 10, at 7 p.m. at the town building. New members are welcome.

The potluck supper put on by the Newry Town for the "Irish Rovers" from Newry, Ireland was a great success...The Grange Hall was crowded and a good time was had by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Clark have been busy for the last two weeks with a family reunion in Concord, N.H. that included their daughter Tracie, two sisters of Betsy and their husbands, another sister and her friend, a niece and three children, and of course all the other relatives like the mothers, etc. One sister and her husband from Florida will spend July 4 with them here in North Newry. Dick and Betsy will probably want a vacation themselves after this is all over...But I'm sure they enjoyed every minute of it.

The Newry "Bowling Gang" who went to the Oxford Lanes in Rumford were Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Louise Tetley, Irene Hadfield, Sylvia Wight and Olive Anderson. Rena Powers was a guest. Of the "Lefties" Betsy was high on the triples with a score of 303 and she was also high on the singles with one string of 113. Of the "Righties" Louise was high on the triples and also high on the singles. Louise had two spares and a strike, Betsy had one strike and five spares. Karlene had one spare, and Gil had four spares. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

Maude Harta was not operated on. She came home Monday afternoon. Vernal says she feels pretty good.

Sunday, June 28, I visited Mr. and Mrs. Norman Millett at their camp. Mr. and Mrs. James Coffin, Dale Coffin, Bonita Hill, Brenda LaCroix, James Michael Coffin, and Roger LaCroix came later.

Monday, June 29, I went to Dr. Matuska in Lewiston, had my hair cut at Friscillas, went to Dr. Wares and just got home and "that nice Charlotte Cole" brought me a box of strawberries. Joe Vatcher brought me two boxes, they were delicious.

Tuesday, June 30, I went and took an anniversary card and gift to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Felt, their 47th anniversary.

Wednesday, July 1, I took Mr. and Mrs. Cleon Pinkham to Northland to celebrate their 45th anniversary. Our anniversary was July 1 also. They brought me a dozen red roses in memory of it. We shopped, then visited Jeanne Millett at her camp. Dale Coffin was there. We had a very nice visit. Sharon Silver and Jenn Felt brought a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations, lilies and baby's breath. I imagine her folks Richard and Barbara Felt were in on it also. Thanks so much.

Thursday, July 2, Dora Dingley and Mary Smith went with me to the Country Way to the Bryant Pond Senior Citizens smorgasbord dinner. A good crowd and a delicious luncheon.

I hope everyone had a happy and safe July 4 weekend.

Callers, Joe Kalinowski, Joe Vatcher, Ian Ulsley, Francis Brooks, Jason and Mark Thayer, Norma Reidy and Sharon Silver who mowed my lawn, she does a beautiful job.

Owen Bonney, a former resident of North Paris, who has been a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital, is home. He goes to Maine Medical in two weeks.

The new shelves upstairs in the Historical Museum have been arranged somewhat to look like a pantry in an old house with china, glass and kitchen utensils. Some other things have also been brought up so it will not be quite so crowded downstairs. A small display of old advertising fans has been put out in the museum for awhile. There are still things made by the society on sale at the museum so buy something and help out. There are now special exhibits upstairs and downstairs so visit soon. The society hopes to show a film on the events of last year, the afternoon of July 18. It was given to the museum by Annie Crockett.

INVESTING IN SAVINGS BONDS (Timing is Crucial)

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

Because today's interest rates are relatively low, U.S. savings bonds are an attractive investment. As a bonus, you don't have to pay state or local income taxes on the bonds' interest.

If you own U.S. savings bonds, pay attention to their interest accrual and final maturity dates. U.S. savings bonds have interest-bearing lives between 20 and 40 years, depending upon the series. (Series EE, for example have a life of 30 years.) If you keep bonds beyond their interest-bearing life, you'll earn no additional interest and will forego interest income you could have earned elsewhere. If you own expired U.S. savings bonds, you should redeem them or roll them into other bonds immediately.

Even if the bonds have not expired, you need to ensure that you don't lose money by redeeming them at the wrong time. U.S. savings bonds generally accrue interest semiannually. If you redeem the bonds immediately before their semiannual interest-accrual date, you'll miss out on the interest that has been accruing over the previous months. To take full advantage of the accrued interest, wait until just after the interest accrual date before redeeming the bonds.

How much interest will you forego if you redeem your bonds at the wrong time? Consider this: if held for five years or longer, Series EE savings bonds have a minimum interest rate of six percent. An EE bond with a value of $4,800 a few days before the semiannual interest accrual date would increase by over $140 at the accrual date.

So if you own any U.S. savings bonds, carefully monitor their interest-accrual and maturity dates. Corner of Vernon & Main Streets, Bethel • 824-2802

The Bethel Citizen

East Stoneham

By ELEANOR NELSON

Heather Rogers from Northern Maine is visiting her grandparents Craig and Kathy Adams for a couple of weeks.

Kyle and Stephen Barker celebrated their birthday Sunday with a birthday party.

Johnny Kahkonen from Norway is staying with his aunt and uncle, Frances and Bob Grant, for this past week.

Several people from town attended the auction at North Waterford Fairgrounds Sunday afternoon. This was to benefit the North Waterford Fair Association. This is always fun, especially when there is competition in the bidding. Some people get carried away and bid higher and higher. They had some pretty good articles to bid on. Albert (Junior) Penley from West Paris was the auctioneer. His wife, Charmaine, and I used to work together at B.E. Cole Co. office and we had a nice visit during the afternoon.

Matthew Nelson has had the chicken pox this past week.

The Boy Scouts of America Troop 155 will be leaving Sunday for a week of camping at Camp Hinds. Everett Morrison, Troy Nelson, Josh Johnson and Chris Gregson are among those that belong to this organization from this area.

East Stoneham Church supper schedule is for July 2, 16 and 30, Aug. 13 and 27, and Sept. 10. The Albany Hunt's Corner Church supper schedule is for July 9 and 23 and Aug. 6 and 20. There will be a food sale at the IGA store in Bethel to benefit Hunts Corner Cemetery Association beginning at 10 a.m. on July 16.

Beth Jones, Joyce Gouin, Hildred Safford, Leslie Dean and Eleanor Nelson from Hannah F. Richardson Tent #19, D.U.V. at the Howard Johnson Motel in Waterville on June 25 and 26. There were 43 at the granddaughters breakfast on Friday morning. Everyone agreed that it was a good convention. This is a historical and patriotic organization and if anyone would like to join the order and has had someone who served in the Civil War, 1861-1865, please contact a member of this group. We would be so happy to have some new members.

The new Stoneham Post Office hours are: Window, 7:30-12:30, 1:30-4; lobby, 7:30-4:30. Saturday, window, 7:30-11:15; lobby, 7:30-11:30.

Beano games at the Stoneham Rescue started Tuesday night and will be every Tuesday starting at 7:30 p.m. thru Aug. 25.

This will be too late to remind you of the breakfast at Kezar Lake Grange on July 4, but you might want to catch the big breakfast special on Saturday, July 11, 7:30-10 a.m. at the Lovell U.C.C.

When I went to the post office today I met a new animal friend—a little turtle whose name was "zip." He is real cute and little and he lifted his head and looked at me when I spoke to him. What next.

Roy Johnson was around town Tuesday with the Watkins and Avon order book. Diane is still making many trips to the hospital and doctors and will be going in for surgery later this month.

Kate Flynn has had as guests this week Judy and Richard Seane from New Jersey. This is their 15th year of coming to Maine. Dick used to work with Charlie Haeggele and this year their son wanted to come to Maine for his graduation present. They have a beautiful flower garden back home with 640 chrysanthemums and when they go back home they all have to be snipped.

ZAPPED—As part of a team-building game on the first day of Gould Academy summer school, this group of students was given the challenge of getting all its members over the rope—"electric fence"—without touch the hot wire. But the unidentified foot dragger above got zapped, and the whole group had to start over. The students here are part of a course on outdoor skills taught by Andy Chakoumakos, right, who is also an instructor for the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School. Some of the class members here are: Cristina Bermudez of the Canary Islands, Antonio, Enrique and Fernando Caicoys of Oviedo, Spain, Ivan Figueroa and Arnaldo Portuguese of Puerto Rico, Ann Gleason of Norway, Maine, Melinda Johansen of Cohasset, Mass., and Dan Van Sickle of Essex Junction, Vt. The summer school students also take an intensive full-year academic course during the six-week program. (Photo by Kirk Siegel)

I talk about what folks are doing, where their lives are taking them, how this life differs from the other one that I knew. I observe us all as we interact in our valley, noting the pain, the joy, the sharing, and the caring.

This week, for example, we hear that Frances Bennett is at home and doing better each day following her recent hospital stay. Her daughter Colleen reports that Frances has indeed been "out and about" for short walks in the village, and has resumed her life on Main Street in relative independence.

Speaking of relatives...the Hostermans have returned from a westward ho. The trip included a visit with cousins in Michigan. Dick and Jane (of the Flat Road, not of the primer) returned in time for the videotaping of choir practice on Wednesday evening.

Nesta Littlefield, organist and choirmaster, led the bespectacled warblers as her husband Richard ran the camera and offered appropriate "asides." The completed tape was dedicated to Florice Paul, a recent days of the Market Square Nursing facility.

We hope that the recording of our anthems and our antics will bring a measure of joy to our dear friend.

As a measure of our boldness, we'll invite the public to hear a selection or two from our growing repertoire on the first of August. On that evening we'll start with a potluck supper...ply the captive audience with an assortment of anthems (poetic license notwithstanding) and then reward them with dessert and coffee in the ladies' parlor.

This will be our first "gig" and we anticipate it with a certain measure of trepidation.

There is no apparent fear in the recent visits of a pair of rose-breasted grosbeaks and at least one indigo bunting to our feeders. Apparently the decision to keep the sunflower seed available was a good one in terms of spying on the resident aviators. Those who would ordinarily peregrinate the pines and the prairies (I needed a "field" word beginning with "p"...mea culpa...), appear in a blink, perch boldly on the fence, await their turns at the table. And the cedar waxwings have arrived in anticipation of the ripening of berries on certain deliberately placed plantings. Neighbors who consider them pests (the birds that is) are welcome to redirect the flight paths with arrows and promises of uninterrupted berry binges at the Maine-ger.

The Everetts of Virginia Beach, Va., have turned toward their current home after spending a week or two at their Flat Road farm. They've been clearing and chipping the undergrowth next to the stream in anticipation of the day that they will take up residence at the four corners.

Bob and Camilla hope to move north as soon as next spring or as soon as they're able to disembark from the U.S.S. Kennedy and the U.S. Navy with honor. We hosted them at our recent grange pre-meeting supper, and hope to welcome them to the neighborhood soon.

Donald and I would be delighted to welcome you to our hilltop dear Anthony of the English carriage and the Italian meatballs. We'd like to meet Eileen and your girls; we could ply you with our version of your mother's sauce as you enjoy the pool-with-the-view. And when you've been appropriately sated and soothed by the serenity, you and I could talk about getting my words in proper print so that I might take my place with the Bombecks and the Flagg's of this world.

I'm enclosing copies of a few of my columns; I'll sit on the "flat rock" of my past waiting to hear from you. Meanwhile, I bear greetings from Mama Neville...aka Muddy, and good wishes from Tom, Gerrie, Jane, and Peg. We're gathering in our collective memory banks next week at the corner of Warren Street and Chaffee Avenue. Meet us there with Mary Jane, Joe and the Emery boys and we'll race you to Dean Dairy...I'll bring the bologna; you bring the knopf...

Love, C.B.

Howdy Folks, it's Monday Morning, June 29th, and time for me to get more news ready to go. I didn't know as I'd get any news ready this A.M. as I have one of them CANON S-58 electric typewriters and it is a real stubborn thing. It will usually decide to work after a while, but I for one, don't consider the likes of this to be any big improvement over a good non-electric typewriter. One time, it had failed to work for many days, so I took it down to Service Merchandise in Lewiston for them to determine what was wrong with it. They plugged the thing in and low and behold, it never had worked any better than it did right then, so they had no idea what might be ailing the thing.

Early Monday morning, we got some thundershowers and it really rained for several hours. The gardens had been needing rain but I was hoping it would come a bit more moderately. My big garden is on a sidehill and I was afraid it might wash out some of the seed but I guess it didn't.

Sister Viva had been in the Maine Medical in Portland since last Thursday for more chemo therapy, but she returned to her daughter's in Auburn on Monday in time to go to Central Maine Medical in Lewiston for more radiation. Peggy was gone nearly all day, as she had a long hard day of card work at Laverdiere's in South Paris and Bridgton.

I worked inside much of the day cleaning cupboards and other housework.

Tuesday was quite a nice day and I should have been working outside, but had more cupboard cleaning I wanted to do. Sister Peggy came down to help and I guess a woman's touch was what it really needed as it surely did look better, when we were finished. I'm an Old Bach, and hate to admit it, but it is rather nice to have some women folks around to get the meals and clean up the place a little. Peggy and I didn't work too hard on Tuesday. After dinner we made a macaroni, cheese and tuna casserole to take to Grange. We rested and cleaned up a little, then got ready and went to Pomona Grange. This was held at Alder River Grange in East Bethel. We had a real good supper and I guess our casserole wasn't too bad as it was practically all used up. There wasn't a very large attendance as this was election of officers. Some members stay home when it is election of officers as they hope to avoid being voted into any office. I was there and was voted in as Master for the next year.

Wednesday morning, I had to go for another blood test. I go so often that I'm surprised that it is still the red color. After I got home, I worked taking the mower off the old riding lawnmower that I bought from my sister Laura. Peggy did some more weeding in the garden. I don't know how I'd get along without her this Summer. She makes a real good Gal Friday even if it is on Wednesday. She surely has been a big help.

Thursday morning was rather on the cloudy side so I decided it would be a good time for me to pay some bills by check. I worked inside most of the forenoon, but after dinner and doing dishes, Peggy and I headed down street for several hours of errands. I had to have a prescription filled and then I had an appointment with my doctor. Peggy needed to go to the bank and from there, we went down and visited with Lewis and Myrtle Bisbee of Mechanic Falls. I wanted to see if Myrtle would continue as head of the Committee of Women's Activities. She makes a good one for this job, for as Richard Felt says, Myrtle could sell bikinis to the Eskimos and I agree whole heartedly.

After Supper, Peg insisted on mowing more of the lawn, but stopped later as Pauline Kennison came to visit.

After Pauline left, I completed my daily routine by hanging my dirty shirt up in the earden.

Friday was quite a nice day. I worked around here in the forenoon, but after Peggy returned from her card work, in the early afternoon, we got ready and went to visit Viva at her daughter's in Auburn. She seemed to be feeling quite well but was quite confused in her talking. She had taken in a small washing that had been hung outside to dry, and was quite tired. They are trying to get her feel needed and to help her coordination. Sister Laura had visited her on Wednesday. After we got back home from visiting Viva, we had supper at Peggy's. She wanted to share a pizza and I was very glad to cooperate.

Saturday, Peggy and I tackled the job of caging the tomato plants that I have set out in the gardens. I had several cages from by-gone years that were still usable, but I had to have more wire. We worked on them in the forenoon, but in the early afternoon, Peggy's daughter Myrna and husband Whitey came to visit and immediately, Peggy put Whitey to work helping me with the tomato plants and got Myrna to hook up the VCR that we bought a while ago. Peggy has three sons-in-rather enjoyed the evening. Yesterday dawned fair and breezy. It was cool in the morning, but the temperature changed quite rapidly. We worked outside some in the A.M. but the sun was so hot in the afternoon, we stayed in the shade and rested like we're supposed to do.

We were lucky at dinner time yesterday. We had been working outside and didn't realize that sister Laura had come down to my brothers next door, but she invited us up to have dinner with them. She had brought the most of the dinner down with her so we took a little extra from here and went up there for a lovely ham dinner.

In the evening, Peggy and I went up nearly to Locke Mills and then down to some camps just off the Gore Road that are owned by a Mrs. Tucci, as I understand it, Herman Cole's son, Richard with wife Margaret and some of the family had been there from Pennsylvania and were leaving for home today. We visited mostly with Herman's granddaughter Martha and husband Brian Hoff also their very cute, 8 month old daughter. Charlotte Cole was also there visiting and after visiting outside for a little while, we went inside and enjoyed lots of music. They are a real musical family, both playing instruments and singing. We really enjoyed the evening.

Saturday Evening, the Lovejoy family called on Frank and Flossie Flanders in Norway.

The Lovejoy girls helped out at the Daily Vacation Bible School, at South Paris Baptist Church.

Last Wednesday evening, Kathleen Holding, Audrey Hadley and Mary Lovejoy called on Walter and Elizabeth Bragg. Mary reports that Elizabeth is both feeling and looking quite well again. We all hope this will continue.

Marsha Baxter and her sister Ruth visited the Lovejoys one day this week. Marsha's Sister Ruth leaves for home in Michigan today, June 29th.

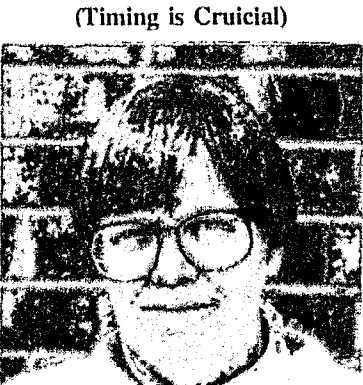

This is the end of my news for now. If the Good Lord is willing and the typewriter will work, I'll be sending along more news next week.

EMPOWERING GIRLS—27 middle schoolers and five chaperones travelled to Boston and the Maine coast last week. The "Empowering Girls" group enjoyed many first time experiences in Quincy Market, the New England Aquarium, and the Boston Museum of Science. After the full day of activities in Boston, the travelling decision makers enjoyed the evening at the Comfort Inn and Yoksens in Portsmouth, N.H. Evening fun included swimming, lifting weights and a round of skits by everyone including the chaperones. Friday found the girls waking to 80 degrees weather and a continuation of their trip to Saco. The Old Orchard Beach coastal area provided many options: swimming, games, rides, volleyball, shopping, eating, and walking on the beach. Much of the trip was financed by a grant secured by guidance counselor Sally Hannon, from the Women's Fund of Maine. The group also raised spending money selling food during the last days of school. Other activities are being planned for the girls by themselves and the advisor board. Canoeing, hiking, and lobstering should be on tap for the next two weeks.

INVESTING IN SAVINGS BONDS

(Timing is Crucial)

This article is brought to you by Jane D. Gray, CPA

Because today's interest rates are relatively low, U.S. savings bonds are an attractive investment. As a bonus, you don't have to pay state or local income taxes on the bonds' interest.

If you own U.S. savings bonds, pay attention to their interest accrual and final maturity dates. U.S. savings bonds have interest-bearing lives between 20 and 40 years, depending upon the series. (Series EE, for example have a life of 30 years.) If you keep bonds beyond their interest-bearing life, you'll earn no additional interest and will forego interest income you could have earned elsewhere. If you own expired U.S. savings bonds, you should redeem them or roll them into other bonds immediately.

Even if the bonds have not expired, you need to ensure that you don't lose money by redeeming them at the wrong time. U.S. savings bonds generally accrue interest semiannually. If you redeem the bonds immediately before their semiannual interest-accrual date, you'll miss out on the interest that has been accruing over the previous months. To take full advantage of the accrued interest, wait until just after the interest-accrual date before redeeming the bonds.

How much interest will you forego if you redeem your bonds at the wrong time? Consider this: If held for five years or longer, Series EE savings bond have a minimum interest rate of six percent. An EE bond with a value of $4,800 a few days before the semiannual interest-accrual date would increase by over $140 at the accrual date.

So if you own any U.S. savings bonds, carefully monitor their interest-accrual and maturity dates. Corner of Vernon & Main Streets, Bethel • 824-2802

Annella Burham and Mary Billings have done some work repairing the book of alumni pictures that the library gave the Historical Museum. Larry Billings has given the museum a coffee urn.

If you have any medium sized items to go on the new shelves at the museum, bring them Saturday afternoons or to the museum or when the museum is open and do take the time to visit the museum this summer. It is kept open on Saturdays for the public's benefit.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews stayed with Olive Davis a couple of days after they brought her home from the hospital. Esther Davis calls often and visits with her daughter. What a thoughtful group.

Thundershowers caught up with us Sunday night. The lightning was very brilliant.

Lettie Brooks had a group of ladies at her farm home, Monday to fill the fir pillows they have been working on. The ladies will take them home and sew them up for sale for the benefit of the Universalist Church group.

Francis and Glennis Brooks have donated a bell to the Historical Society. Curator Larry Billings gave a metal flower collage and Ray and Annella Burham gave a book on Maine besides attending the museum recently.

Olive and Esther Davis were in Bethel on business Tuesday.

Thursday, Olive was at Dr. Mason's office for impressions of her teeth.

The historical museum records our area's history, and we can all learn more about our past of Maine.

There is a donation dish at the museum, so try to leave something to help out this nonprofit organization.

There is information on many subjects in the Historical Society library, and you can also visit your local library. The society encourages learning for all ages.

Deven Benson attended Boys State at Maritime Academy at Castine this week. Doreen Benson took him down Sunday, the 21st and picked him up on Friday, June 26 after graduating exercises that morning. She attended the graduation. Douglas Bennett, also, was one of the boys who attended from Telstar school. There were three who attended from here in all.

Dean Benson, from Fort Hood, Tex. where he is stationed in the service called home and said they were having a big ceremony there. All the troops that served in operation Desert Storm, were getting their medals for being over there. Dean is also Doreen Benson's son.

Every year on July 4th when I wake up I am struck again by the silence and this year with the rain it was even quieter than ever. No one was out preparing for a barbeque, no sound of children playing, nothing but the patter of rain which, although a welcome sound considering the dry conditions, is not quite the same as the excited noisy sounds I remember. The children had waited with eager anticipation for this day, most of June having been spent poring over the selection of fireworks, every penny hoarded, candy mostly forgotten for a time, until the stockpile of firecrackers, sparklers, cherry bombs and others had reached the desired level—in my case it didn't take very long being a rather timid child I stuck mostly to sparklers and caps—and finally the day was upon us. I woke to the sounds of firecrackers—noise, noise, noise all day long it seemed. And at night it seemed as if the town was alight with color from the rockets. I'm not advocating going back to the old days, people did get hurt, some seriously, things did sometimes get out of hand when old feuds erupted or those with little sense of accepted behavior abused the privilege of being allowed to have fireworks and with the sounds of today's weapons of death and destruction coming over the TV daily, the joy of unbridled noise is no longer joy but more a sense of fear. No, we can't go back but I can't help but feel today's children have lost a little something nevertheless.

Lorenzo Cole of South Paris and daughter, Priscilla, from Virginia called recently on his cousin Mary Mills to say goodbye as he was leaving to go to Mahwah, N.J. He sold his home in South Paris and was going to make his home with his son, Sherman Cole, there in New Jersey.

Jay Melville is reported recuperating nicely from his recent surgery at a Bangor hospital.

Val and Caroline Greene are at their home here for the holiday. Their daughter, Linda, husband Jim Ryan and boys, Nick and Ben are visiting them. Val and Jim put up a nice screened addition on the deck of the house and got the awning type roof over it just in time before the rain set in. That should help keep out most of the bugs although nothing stops those no-see-ums. I think from the feel they must be all stinger too.

John and I attended a work day at our church on Saturday, then I helped Donna Downs clean the rest of her mother's apartment on Monday and then Thursday John and I were scheduled for the usual weekly church cleaning. I've discovered muscles I had forgotten I had!

Praise Assembly of God in Rumford Center held their annual church picnic at Debbie Brown's parents, Pip and Ada Cummings' camp on North Pond Sunday. Those attending were Debbie and Owen Brown, Jake Swick (Tracy Swick was home recuperating from chicken pox), Kim and Allan Brown, Pastor Rob Rainville, Denise and their children, Amanda, Emily, Andrea and Ryan, Wanda Hutchinson and sons, Donald and Ray, Bob and Loni Drisgill and son Ryan, Craig and Sandy Nash, Dot Chopping, Vickie, James and Rusty Hughes, Lorraine and John Mills, Al and Crystal Lake and son Brent, Debbie Hertell and Kirstie, Rob and Lauri Brown and sons, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernier, Kathy Korhonen and Macky Chapman. Everyone enjoyed the cookout, boat rides, swimming and volleyball. It is nice of the Cummings to let us enjoy their camp every year.

PEDALERS LOOSEN UP PICKING UP LITTER--Philip May of Washington D.C. and Allison Shoptav of Georgia pick up trash Sunday along Route 2 outside the Bethel landfill. The pick-up was a volunteer project taken on prior to a 14-day Outward Bound bicycling tour. Town Manager Madeleine Henley suggested the project when contacted by Outward Bound. "I've been waiting a long time for someone who was willing to take that one on," Henley said.

Antibiotics for Urinary Tract Infections

The urinary tract is the name of the system that rids the body of waste materials by way of the urine. The urinary tract is made up of the kidneys, urinary bladder, ureters (tubes connecting kidneys and bladder), and urethra (tube connecting the bladder and outside the body). Since the urinary tract is open to outside the body, bacteria and other organisms can enter the urinary tract and cause infections. Bacteria associated with these infections include E. coli, Proteus, Klebsiella, Pseudomonas, and Staphylococcus.

Symptoms of urinary tract infections include frequent urination and a burning/painful sensation when urinating. Infections of the bladder (cystitis), urethra (urethritis), and kidneys (pyelonephritis) are reported to occur in about 10 percent of the population. One report indicates that 20 percent of all antibiotic prescriptions written are for urinary tract infections.

Prescription medicines which are particularly effective in treating urinary infections include nitrofurantoin, trimethoprim, and the quinolone antibiotics. The quinolones include cinoxacin, ciprofloxacin, ofloxacin, and norfloxacin.

PUSS & PUTTS--David Bell of Sanford had more than the usual obstacles to contend with recently on the Bethel Inn's putting green. Casey, Assistant General Manager Bill Wight's cat, decided to paw a few balls around himself. Casey eventually decided that napping, and not golf, was more his style. So he curled up for a nap on the edge of the green and left golf to the two-legged competitors.

Policy review

events leading up to his suspension.

"Put yourself in his shoes," Jennifer asked the committee. "I went to this school and I got labeled. I got called down to the office every time something happened. I can go into the school now and pick out the kids that are labeled losers. There's no compassion for those kids. If they're a problem--kick 'em out. What's the problem with working with the kids. If Ryan was so bad why didn't any information go home to my mother. Ryan was getting satisfactory report cards. This came, bang, bang and he's out."

Jennifer continued tearfully and addressed Superintendent Dewaine Craig. "I know you were behind this. I feel you presented the school board with only what you wanted them to see. I never would have known that was my brother who were talking about. Every kid, whether he smokes pot, drives fast or whatever, deserves an education and not to be harassed."

Earlier in the meeting, Attorney Carey pointed out that the school's policy on student conduct said no student should "intentionally" cause physical harm to another student.

Injury unintentional?

Carey said he questioned that it was Ryan's intent to harm another student.

Jennifer maintained that Ryan did not throw the orange to hurt anyone. "This was not intentional conduct," she said. "It might have been negligent or reckless, but not intentional. I understand there are other students doing the same thing and Ryan just happened to hit someone. ... It happens all the time. They're trashing the school. These students are not treated with any respect, how can you expect them to treat you with any respect?"

Jennifer went on to say that she felt Ryan's suspension might have been especially harsh because the student hit with the orange was the daughter of school board member Cheryl Eliot, who also sits on the policy committee.

"I know you were wicker upset Mrs. Eliot," Jennifer said. "But Ryan never meant to hurt Dawn and he's sorry it happened. They used him as a guinea pig to stop this kind of behavior. His feelings were never taken into consideration."

Ryan's mother said she too felt her son's repentant attitude was not given enough consideration.

Ryan's family also asked if the school board was aware of how Ryan's case was investigated.

Board unaware of memo

They want to know if the board knew about Higgins' memo which asked for negative input on Ryan's behavior.

Craig said the board was unaware of the memo. After the meeting, he said the board did not know about much of the material administrators had gathered in the case.

"In this case," he said, "Ryan denied on several occasions that he had thrown the orange. Mr. (Ted) Davis started to present the finding of fact to the school board, but then Mr. (Gordon) Crockett asked why we were doing it because Ryan admitted throwing the orange. At that point we stopped presenting the case, because he said he had thrown the orange. The board didn't see a lot of the information that was gathered."

At Tuesday's meeting, however, Carey said he thought the board should have known about the memo.

"We are irate that this kind of memo was circulated and the school board knew nothing about it," Carey said. "There are student rights involved here. The board would assume that just comments were asked for and that 90 percent of them came back negative--and this was a bad apple."

"I should think the school board would be as upset at the administration as the parents are because they've been betrayed too," said Stowell's step-father Gordon "Butch" Crockett.

Other options

Carey suggested that the policy committee review the policies regarding investigating student disciplinary matters.

He also suggested they look into using a student/administrative advocate to investigate disciplinary cases.

Carey said administrators and students representatives could choose a school or community member to gather the facts in disciplinary matters going before the board. Carey recommended the advocate be someone both the students and staff felt was fair and impartial.

Jim Lowe of Bethel also suggested that the school could set up a student court, where students would act as defense, prosecution, judge and jury. Lowe said similar courts he had seen allowed students to try most cases unless severe physical or psychological damage had been inflicted on a student.

Lowe said he would provide the address of a school district he had worked in which used the system.

Policy committee chairman Ray Harrington said he would be happy to look into the suggestion. He also assured Carey that the committee would also be thoroughly reviewing policies pertaining to the steps leading up to a student's suspension.

Following the meeting Carey said he and the family would carefully evaluate their case against the district before proceeding with a possible suit.

"I was satisfied with tonight's meeting," Carey said. "We were here so that this sort of thing doesn't happen again."

Monster trucks and free rides at No. Waterford World Fair

By CAROL WALDEIER

The annual World's Fair will be held July 16-19 on the North Waterford fairgrounds, with free rides for the $5 price of admission.

The fair was the first in the state to offer free rides from opening to closing. Vice President Peter Nason says the policy lets people know how much they'll have to spend and will save parents money.

New events this year include a monster truck show and truck competition. The show will be held Friday, July 17, at 7 p.m. and is expected to be one of the highlights of the fair this year.

The fair will also feature a farmers' market, where local farmers will be invited to set up produce booths for selling garden vegetables or jams, jellies and other goods.

The beano hall will be a commercial exhibition hall this year, with crafts, clothing, wood products and other items for sale. Expo 2 will be a real estate building this year, with five realtors from Bridgton, Bethel, Waterford and Lovell showing local listings and properties available.

New this year, the Dance Hall will host a mineral and gem show on Sunday. Also July 19, the Finnish dancers of South Paris will perform. A new stage has been constructed this summer for the dancers and performers, one of whom is Peter Finkle in Concert.

Along with the new offerings, many of the past exhibits and booths will be offered. A quilt show sale will be held on Friday and Saturday, with local quilters showing their work with quilting demonstrations.

There will be a 4-H demonstration on cattle and sheep, and many other animals on exhibit--along with the ever-popular pig scramble, open to children eight to 12 years of age, on Saturday at 5 p.m., pigs willing and available.

Senior citizens day will be Thursday, with special events all that day, from a horseshoe tournament to a baking contest.

Other horseshoe tournaments include the juniors, mens and womens pairs, and this year the Chet Millet Memorial Horseshoe Single Tournament on Saturday at 10 a.m.

Another highlight, the World's Fair Dance, will be held Saturday night at 8:30 and will feature Charlie Gillam.

OUT OF THE MOUNTAINS AND HITTING THE ROAD--U.S. Forest Service Forest Technician Thomas Barton, left, congratulates Thomas Bartholomew of Newry on his recent retirement from the Forest Service. Bartholomew worked for 13 years in the Senior Community Service Employment program at the Evans Notch Ranger District of the White Mountain National Forest. Bartholomew received a certificate of recognition for his service, which was signed by Forest Service Chief F. Dale Robertson. Bartholomew said he's planning to spend much of retirement travelling. He's off to Denver this week to visit relatives. This winter, he said, he may abandon the cold Maine winter and go to Florida.

REACH SEEKS HOTLINE VOLUNTEERS

REACH, the Rape Education and Crisis Hotline, provides crisis intervention, support and referral services, throughout Oxford County, to victims of sexual assault. The services are confidential and free of charge.

REACH is seeking volunteers to staff its 24 hour hotline. Volunteers receive approximately 25 hours of free training on such topics as the myths surrounding sexual assault, crisis intervention skills, marital and acquaintance rape, the rape trauma syndrome, incest, medical care and hospital protocol, criminal justice system information and training, community resources, male victims, and more. Volunteers are then asked to attend one volunteer meeting a month.

Hotline advocates can make a difference in the life of someone who has been traumatized by sexual assault. The job of a volunteer is to listen, believe, and support victims of sexual assault. Volunteers do not have to sit by a phone and wait for calls. We use a pager system that allow the person on call to be free to attend to other things.

Statistics show that one in three females and one in five males will be sexually assaulted before the age of 18.

Volunteers choose their own shifts and work only as many hours as they are comfortable with. For an application or more information, call the REACH office at 743-9777.

Rotary Club notes

The Tuesday, June 30, meeting was dedicated to the handing over of the gravel from 1991-92 president David Murphy to new 1992-93 president Jeff Parsons.

David Murphy, in his remarks, thanked his officers and directors for doing such a great job during the past year. They are: Jeff Parsons, president elect; Jim Sysko, vice president; Bruce Powell, secretary; Dwayne Craig, sergeant-at-arms; David Murphy, past president and fundraising director; Ted Davis, past president and chair of club service; Dwayne Craig, sergeant-at-arms; Dick Fain, chair of vocational service; Nancy Harrison, chair of community service; and Melinda Remington, chair of international service.

David also thanked Wendy Penley who allowed the club to use her house for our club social. The club would like to thank Sandy Wheeler for doing a fantastic job catering the meal and Ron Lachariti from Dixfield for the great music.

David announced that the club was making a donation of $200 to Camp Susan Curtis. He read a thank you from Kristin Powell for receiving the Rotary Scholarship.

Linda Varrell presented Rotary Information and reflected on a session she attended at the Rotary District Assembly on International Service. Some clubs have established letter exchanges with clubs overseas which have resulted in helping with each others' projects. She thought it might be something we could look into doing.

New president Jeff Parsons presented David Murphy with his past president pin and congratulated him on a fantastic year. One great accomplishment was the establishment of over 92 percent overall attendance for the year.

Jeff introduced his "team" of officers and directors. They are: Jim Sysko, president elect; Nancy Harrison, vice president; Bruce Powell, secretary; John Head, treasurer; Dwayne Craig, sergeant-at-arms; David Murphy, past president and fundraising director; Ted Davis, chair of vocational service; Wendy Penley, chair of international service; Scott Dennis, club service; and George Larson, community service.

In his remarks, Jeff urged club members to get their spouses and families involved in Rotary life and he would like to see more club participation in activities. He has charged David Murphy with the challenge of raising funds so that we can further our scope of influence and help the communities in which we live.

Guests for the morning were Jane deFrees of Rumford; Larry Kidner of Oxford Hills; Bill Lowther and Gil Robinson, summer regulars; Anna Sysko of Newry; and Joe Romano of Hartford, Conn.

Task force notes:

The Bethel Area Task Force held its regular meeting Sunday night, July 5. Brief reports were given on recent Task Force successes, the party to welcome NTL to Bethel, and a Sunrise Seminar about the Task Force.

Two upcoming events were announced: this Friday, July 10, a Task Force team will present a Sunrise Seminar entitled "Community Futuring: A Focus Group Experience." Local residents are invited to all Sunrise Seminars, held at the Bethel Inn Conference Center each week of the summer from 7:15-8 a.m., Wednesday through Saturday.

The major focus of the meeting was the planning of a special dinner meeting July 12, 6 p.m. at the Holiday House, when the Task Force will exchange information and ideas with Dr. Lennox Joseph, executive director of NTL. The next regular meeting is Sunday, Aug. 9, 7 p.m. at the Bingham House.

Frog jumping contest

The 10th Annual Frog Jumping Contest will take place on Molykett Day, Saturday, July 18 at 2 p.m. across from the common.

Children of all ages and frogs of all shapes and sizes are invited to enter. There is a small entry fee. Cash prizes will be awarded for the frogs that jump the longest distance in three consecutive jumps. A prize is also given to the frog jumping the shortest distance.

The frog jumping contest has become an increasingly popular event, as evidenced by the registration of over 100 frogs last year.

Children are urged to be kind to their frogs, and to ensure the frog's safe return to a pond there will be a collection bucket available at the contest.

This event is sponsored by the Bethel Area Health Center and coordinated by Pete and Vicki Rackliffe. Special thanks to Dave Preble and Prim's Pharmacy for the donation of poster materials and Stan Howe for the use of his property.

BOOK DONATIONS—The West Bethel Children's Center was the recent recipient of a gift of over 100 hardcover children's books given by the New England Reading Association. Sue Welch, representing the association, and Cindi Mills, director of WBCC, are shown above with summer day care children checking out the books.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

Summer is a wonderful time in the Bethel area—a time for wonder. We are in awe of the beautiful blossoms on plants and flowers that have burst forth—the peonies, roses, all the beautiful and distinctive shapes. We can marvel that those tiny seeds have produced spinach and lettuce and whatever you are already eating from your garden. We can look at the majestic mountains or we can look from them. They were here before us and will remain after us. We can appreciate the calming effect of looking at the river and lakes or the excitement of being on them or in them.

We feel closer to the land in the summertime. We are working in it and playing on it. We may own a large or small piece of the land. Or do we? It is a good time to wonder about that. We read in Leviticus (25:23) that the Lord said to Moses, "The land shall not be sold in perpetuity, for the land is mine; for you are strangers and sojourners with me." Do we believe that? What would it mean if we did?

IN LOVING MEMORY OF NELSON A. HART on his Birthday, July 5th

Eighteen years have gone by since the Lord called you away. There are times when it seems like only yesterday. If only I could see your face and smile, and talk with you for awhile. Just once again to hear your voice. Many tears I have cried since I had to say good-bye. There is one thing I want you to know, I will see you again someday to say Hello! A great comfort this is to me. Oh what happiness there will be!

Sadly missed by your daughter
